This fascinating tour will introduce you to stately Dunrobin Castle, the stunning cliffs of the northern coast and the barren magnificence of Caithness. A splendid day out with a difference!

We leave Inverness behind and head across the Black Isle to the Cromarty Firth. In Golspie, high above the town, is an astonishing statue, 27m (90') high. This is of the First Duke of Sutherland, whose agents were involved in the most notorious of the Clearances in the Highlands during the 19th Century. We'll hear more about this sad episode in the history of Scotland and contrast the story with the opulence of magnificent Dunrobin Castle, the ancestral home of the Duke of Sutherland. Our visit to Dunrobin will give you time to explore the castle and its extensive gardens. A real highlight is the falconry display which takes place in the grounds!

Soon we will be in Caithness. The traditional industry of this remote county was herring fishing and during the 19th Century many picturesque harbours were constructed here to meet the needs of this ever-expanding industry. We will see a number of examples as we make our way Northwards.

There will be a stop in John O' Groats for that "I was there" photograph before making our way to stunning Duncansby Head where, after a stroll along the cliff-top path, there are views of the dramatic sea stacks and seascapes to enjoy. Duncansby is rich in birdlife including Guillemot and, the most famous residents, Puffins (until late July). There are binoculars available on-board our mini-coach so you can get a "close up" view. After our visit to Duncansby we turn southwards for home. Our journey will take us through Wick before we make journey's end in Inverness.
