The scenery of Scotland's north west coast is amongst the most spectacular in Europe. Sky high mountains, dramatic seascapes and remote villages combine to create an excursion that offers immense beauty.

From Inverness we will cross the Kessock Bridge and drive through the Black Isle to Garve and the pretty fishing town of Ullapool beyond. We will enjoy some free time in this pleasant little community which sits on the banks of Loch Broom. Later we will make our way northwards to the distinctive scenery of North West Sutherland. This part of Scotland is the most sparsely populated corner of Europe. It's where the eagles and peregrines soar and there is just so much space. The landscape is so ancient that it's difficult to grasp the enormity of time wrapped up in these rocks. The importance of geology to this area has created Scotland's first "Geopark" and within it's boundary we will see the dramatic peaks of Sulven, Quinag and Canisp which stand guard over the surrounding countryside.

We will stop to view lonely Ardvreck Castle, now a ruin this 15th Century sits on a promontory overlooking Loch Assynt. The pleasant community of Lochinver is our next visit. A "must see" here is the visitor centre which will set the scene on the geology and wildlife of this remote and unspoilt part of Scotland.

Our journey continues over the Kylesku Bridge to Scourie from where we will turn southwards to drive along the banks of Loch Shin to Lairg. There is a stop at Shin Falls, the Harrods of the North, where you can purchase authentic Harrods goods thanks to the Laird of this estate who also owns that well known emporium in London! A short drive will return us to Inverness.
